Your Submission to the TPC Review: Any changes to the TPC could fundamentally change the planning system, and how we the community are involved in the resource management and planning decisions/processes.

We are concerned that the review of the TPC is part of a broader move to a Minister-centred model of decision-making, displacing the role of the TPC as an independent decision-maker and advisor. This is important because the TPC is an independent expert body, which provides the community with a fair hearing on resource management and planning matters.
