Name: Dr James Russell

Your Submission to the TPC Review: I submit that as a body which enlists actual planning expertise on matters of importance to Government on many levels, protection of that expertise capacity must be maintained.

I have had experience, mostly in past years under the Commission's former name (at Planning Appeals), of also representing deliberations from my own field of expertise on behalf of appellants, e.g., with respect to cultural heritage in general, but in particular with respect to cultural landscape values and community social values which have been built over at times many years.

It is these kinds of functions that must be kept alive and even strengthened more if Tasmania is to have a credible image within Australia and internationally, as well as to serve its own community.
