Get our new RWVP fact sheets and guides

Need some easy explainers about the RWVP Scheme? Then download our new fact sheets and sector guides today!

If you or your workers/volunteers need a RWVP, our new fact sheets will help you understand:

- what criminal offences will disqualify someone from holding a RWVP
- what incidental contact with vulnerable people, including children, is
- what reportable behaviour is and how we use information to assess people who hold a RWVP.

We also have sector guides for the VET and child care sectors.

All these resources have case studies that bring to life the information and RWVP requirements.

We're creating more of these resources over the coming months too, exploring more sectors and explaining more RWVP topics — so watch this space!

Take our employer portal survey

We will soon be introducing a new online registration system. This new secure and user-friendly system will make it easier for someone to apply for and renew their RWVP.

This will include a new portal for organisations to keep track of worker and volunteer registrations.

To inform this work, we've launched a survey. A few minutes of your time will help us understand your experience with the current employer portal and what you would value in the new one.

Do you need to apply for a RWVP?

To help you determine if the workers or volunteers in your organisation need a RWVP for working with children, jump onto our Registration decision tool.

Choose your sector, use the examples and info, and find out if their activities are covered by the Scheme - and therefore if they need a RWVP.

Use the registration decision tool now.

Share the RWVP word!

We've done the hard work for you and written content you can use in your social media, newsletters and intranets. Lead the way and help your workers, volunteers and others in your networks stay informed about RWVP developments.

Our current Communications Packs cover RWVP's new website and recent changes to the RWVP scheme.

We'll be creating more in coming months to make connecting with your stakeholders even easier.
