Your Submission to the TPC Review: There is no reason for this review of TPC . The role of the TPC should be maintained, with a broadening and strengthening of its roles. The independence of the TPC is vital, they provide the community with the right to formally be heard in respect of decisions and policy reviews, they enable public participation, an essential element in a democracy. The work of the TPC is informed by independent experts in the relevant fields not the policies of the sitting government of the day. The balanced independence of the TPC is vital for good longterm decisions for the benefit of all Tasmanians (note, less than 50% vote for any incumbent government so important planning decisions need a wider perspective than partisan polucies).
